

YORK ARCHBISHOP PREACHES WAR TO HOST AT TRINITY

Praises America's Part, but Says She Must Prepare to Suffer to Win.

Hundreds of New Yorkers strove to enter Trinity Church this morning to hear the final sermon by the Most Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, Archbishop of York. When the clock in the steeple struck 11 every seat in the big church was filled and a crowd was surging into the auditorium. It was impossible for another person to squeeze inside the big doors, as these were flung wide and the people stood massed to the sidewalk and into Broadway.

As the Archbishop was ten minutes late in arriving the preliminary service was eliminated and the Archbishop proceeded at once with his final message to the people of New York. He said it was very appropriate that the last word he had to say to the people of this city should be to-day. He reminded them that on Good Friday one year ago this Nation decided on its course regarding the world war. Already, he said, the vanguard of the great armies that will engage the enemy has given of its life in the cause of human freedom.

"Many more lives," said the prelate, "must be given before the end can come. It is well now to think of the sorrowing homes that will, must be, cast into mourning because of loved ones who never will return in this life. If the American people have not before come to realize what is in store for them this fact will bring it close to their hearts and minds."

The Archbishop reminded his hearers that peace is not in itself always an unmitigated blessing. In times of peace, security, wealth and ease, he said, the sense of national greatness is blunted, dimmed. It is only in times of great trial such as that now upon the world, he said, that the real greatness of a people is shown forth not only to the rest of the world, but to themselves.

He said Belgium first had shown this in a wonderful way. The little kingdom had refused to be enslaved, he said, though destroyed practically by a ruthless, pretended friend. Then England had dared to stand forth for the right, and one year ago America, he declared, was called upon to choose and had chosen. To-day the great nations of the earth are banded together, unified, resolute, determined that there shall be but one finish to the conflict.

The Archbishop spoke with deep feeling of what has been done by America in this crisis.

Gustav B. Kulenkampf, Friend of Pavenstadt, Faces Internment Here.

On the suspicion that he has been in communication with German agents in Argentina, Gustav B. Kulenkampf, formerly of the firm of Kulenkampf & Company, exporters, is being held in the Tombs awaiting internment proceedings. The Government has learned that he has a brother in Buenos Ayres and was a close friend of Adolph Pavenstadt, who figured in the Boia Paia case. It is believed evidence found in the Pavenstadt papers led to the arrest of Kulenkampf.

It is alleged that in 1915, Kulenkampf had $750,000 at his disposal for German propaganda work. He was associated with Capt. Boy-Ed and Karl Busch, formerly German Consul General and head of the Hamburg-Amerika line in this country. He managed to get clearance papers at that time for a steamship that was to put a big and costly German raiding party on the coast. It is declared that he sent $25,000 to German agents in San Francisco and other substantial sums to agents in other cities.

Introducing the New Spring Styles In Suits and Overcoats For Men and Young Men

The new season brings with it a serious mood in the styles of men's clothes. The novelty and extreme designs of former years have given way somewhat to smart, plain, wool economizing, yet not skimpy models, quite in accordance with the present tendency to eliminate the unnecessary.

Again we have turned to various manufacturers of men's clothing that our stocks may be complete to the point of satisfying all men as to quality, style and price—and in maintaining our standard of prices lower than elsewhere we have not allowed the quality of our merchandise to suffer.

Men's Suits, $17.50 to $39.75

This Spring you will find worsteds, chevrons, flannels and cassimeres, in gray, green, blue and brown mixtures, some black and white checks, not to forget the plain blues in serges and undressed worsted. There are coats with peaked lapels, others with notch lapels, patch pockets, regular pockets and flapless pockets.

A visit to the Men's Clothing Section is a move in the direction of good clothing and real savings.
